KING OF METALS IN CHINA.

Silver More Precious Than Gold.—The first part of the Smith.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat) SILVER is to the Orient what gold is to the Occident. Dr. Edward B. Heddesley, consul at Amoy, says: "To the artist, the scholar, the collector, or it is the king of all the precious metals. Its popularity is not due to cheapness. Jade, which rivals silver in esteem, is much more expensive than gold. There is no other reason for the small use of gold as ornament by the Chinese. In design they like to make their work stand out at nearly the bottom of the list. Then, on the other hand, yellow, red, blue, green, and black are allowed to use it for wearing or other purpose. Silver jewelry and ornaments are not popular. The Chinese coolies' hats have usually arched bracelets and ear-rings. In curios and in the small articles of daily necessities is legion. The greatest manufacturing center is Canton, but Amoy, Foochow, Hankow, and Peking also have considerable numbers of artists and makers of work. Amoy is famous over the empire. Ho may profitably be spent in studying the art of the Chinese silversmith. One class of these consists of miniature reproductions of features of the watch charms, pendants and bangle trinkets. Among the more famous objects are the pagoda, sampan or junk, the lotus flower, the Chinese small footed lady's shoe, the good mercy, the Celestial plow, the lotus of the fishes, the sitting Buddha, the Chinese fishing boat, the pig's bone, the tiger, lion, horse, peacock, elephant, turtle, crocodile, a key, cat and dog. The largest are the Chinese palaces and temples. In this size they diminish to dainty little objects no larger than a grain of rice. The work and features are admirable. The figures of the gods, men, beasts and animals, the scales of fish and crocodiles, and the markings on the turtle's carapace being reduced with the same accuracy.

Another class consists of imitation cordage. The metal is solid, but, at a slight touch, the cordage is out at all right angles, and the cordage is crocheted cord, or braid. Some are as fine as sewing silk, while others are as thick as clotheslines. The slive alloyed with a small percentage of per to increase its hardness and to allow the fine carving and graving possible in the softer substance.

men's tie to Europe from Nanking in this manner aided in the after-ward sale of the goods in France. The designs at times are really marvelous. One from Fuchang consisted of a bouquet, a pair of shoes, a pair of silver, veil, etc., so perfectly made that the veil looked as if it might blow away at any wind. The flowers and leaves were all vivified. Another artistic design was a little quiet scene of a woman and child, and similar botanical beauties perfectly photographed in metal. The custom of the Chinese is to give their friends and relatives gifts of similar things. His goods the gollan merchant in silversware, the weight of the metal, its finish, and the workmanship are all on a separate item, the cost of the workmanship. Thus, one day, in purchasing a pair of shoes, the gollan merchant's bill ran as follows: Silver ounces, 35 per cent, (c) $4.20 (can); workmanship, $2.15; total, $6.35. The bill was perfectly and automatically correct and can be depended on.

Raising Heifers.
(New York Tribune.) The heifer that is to calve next summer and the year following should be well fed would better run with the cows than with the calves. Let them learn cow habits. Let them conwith the cows. Have places for the stable, tie them the same as calves, and give them a little milk. Several gains are thus made. Heifers soon learn the habits of stable cows, the grain fed to the stables their growth, helps to sustain embryo life, and when under development begins this nitrogenous stimulates milk secretion, and a calf is formed. Hence the cow is the best dairy animal, and she can be handled as true as the pig of milk without actually drawing the milk when she comes into the dairy stall cow habits, does not have to be "broken," and she takes her place as the dairy as a young cow.

Rose-Combed Leghorns.
(American Cultivator.) The rose-combed Leghorns may be as good as the single-combed, and many think that they are; but if they are not look much better than the other when the comb is flapping over or half blind and so on. And the least bit of frozen comb in, will ruin them. They may have been originally a variety derived from a cross with some other breed, but now they are, like the Plymouth Rocks, as well established and bred to as any of the other breeds.

PASADENA.

Chances Bright for a Roman Catholic Convent.

News Not Before Made Public—Degree of Honor Lodge, A.O.U.W., Instituted—Personal Notes of Interest and Brevities.

The Times reporter has learned, on what is believed to be good authority, that a Roman Catholic convent and college was to be built soon in and near Pasadena. The convent is already an assured fact. The plans are completed for the structure, which will be erected under the auspices of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart. While the site for the building has not been definitely decided upon, there is good ground for believing that it will be located where a Catholic church now stands, on South Pasadena avenue. The church owns three lots here, which will afford ample room for the convent.

The college will be erected under the auspices of the Redemptorists, an order of priests, with headquarters at Milwaukee, provided the desired site can be obtained at reasonable figures. It seems that this project was started by a lady from Milwaukee, who recently visited Pasadena. She has been in constant communication with friends here regarding the purchase of it or adjacent lands. There is every reason to believe that satisfactory terms will be agreed upon, and that work upon both will be begun within a few months.

DEGREE OF HONOR LODGE.

Saturday evening was a notable occasion in the history of Pasadena Lodge, A.O.U.W., degree lodge. The lodge was instituted as a social auxiliary to the lodge proper, under most auspicious circumstances. The affair was one of the most successful of the kind, not only to the members of the local lodge, but to the brethren in Los Angeles and Morrovia, who were present in large numbers, headed by Grand Master James Booth of Los Angeles, who presided over the exercises. The Los Angeles delegation, over thirty strong, arrived on the 6 o'clock Terminal train, and were met at the station by an escort committee.

THE PAVING QUESTION.

The special matter of importance that will again come before the Council for consideration is the question of paving the street-paving question. This is the day fixed for opening the new bids, and it can be stated on the best of authority that the proposals will be submitted, not only for paving Colton street, but for Raymond and Fair Oaks avenues. The paving of these streets, with the hearty approval of every citizen, except about one-half of the property-owners, will be called upon to foot the bill. The paving of these streets is a matter of public sentiment, and the bulk of the citizens want to see Pasadena go ahead and keep pace in public improvement with those which private individuals of wealth and prominence, who have come here from all parts of the world to live, are making, and the city is to be congratulated upon having at the helm of municipal affairs a Council composed of men of progressive ideas and a proper appreciation of what the needs of the times demand.

Commenting upon this question, the Council, which is a body of property-owners, proposes to see the street-paving question through. New bids have been called for, and the Council is assured they will be put in by thoroughly reliable parties. The anti-improvement movement is seriously handicapped by the fact that the reason that the leaders are at the wrong end of the procession, Pasadena has extensively advertised herself as preparing to inaugurate this necessary improvement, and she cannot afford to fail. Neither can any of her business men, who are in the way of the right track, and will be generally supported.

MEMORIAL SERVICES.

At the First Presbyterian Sunday-school, Sunday morning, brief memorial exercises were held in honor of Walter Graves, the late superintendent of the school, who died a few weeks ago at his old home in New York State. Appropriate resolutions were read, and remarks were made by the pastor, Rev. O. E. Pifer, Mr. Campbell and others. The deceased was a man beloved by all who knew him, and in his capacity as superintendent of the school he was a power for good. He enjoyed the personal esteem and friendship of all the scholars and teachers, and the exercises yesterday were characterized by a feeling and sincerity that was unfeigned.

PASADENA BREVITIES.

J. H. Holmes spent Sunday at Catalina. Dozens of visiting cyclists passed through town on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. W. U. Arthur spent Sunday at Rubio Canyon. The overlands have been arriving on time for several days past. The sprinkling of several of the principal streets on Sunday fills a long-felt want. Who can picture a more delightful August day than was Sunday in Pasadena?

The Y.M.C.A. meeting at Strong's Hall Sunday afternoon was well attended.

The City Council will meet in regular session at 2 o'clock this (Monday) afternoon.

A great many Pasadena residents are at the seashore or paying a visit to the World's Fair.

Sir John Bolle and the Vine Disease.

Important Information About the Vine Disease—What Should Be Done to Stamp It Out—The Latest Orange and Anaheim News.

Agent the recent visit of Sir John Bolle of Austria to this country, and his mission of investigation for the Austrian government, the Orange Post takes occasion to enlarge upon the great importance of the distinguished gentleman's visit, and to urge upon the community the necessity of prompt and proper action in the matter of total and immediate annihilation of the destructive pest.

In speaking of the meeting with Mr. Bolle in this city the Post says:

"On Wednesday evening Commissioner Hafferty and Hamilton, Prof. Pierce, E. S. Wallace of the Los Angeles Times and John McAdams met Sir John Bolle at Santa Ana and received much valuable information with regard to the phylloxera. Some of the points elicited are as follows:

SAN BERNARDINO.

A Silver Demonstration That Failed to Pan Out.

Several Speeches, but the Attendance Was Very Light—The Redlands Hay Ordinance—Notes and Personal.

The silver demonstration at the pavilion in San Bernardino on Saturday night was not a marked success in point of numbers. Although it was advertised as a mass-meeting, but 250 people, men and women, assembled at the appointed hour. The fact that two of the three men who applied for the use of the building for this meeting, and were understood to be at the head of the movement, are prominent people of the country, and the third a conspicuous figure in the Democratic and Republican parties joined in the call, there is no question but that the attendance would have been greater.

The meeting was called to order by Prof. N. A. Richardson, who said in his introductory remarks that the question at issue is not simply the free coinage of silver, but the whole question of money—of what shall it be composed? who shall issue it? and shall its volume be increased?

Judge Wiley of Los Angeles, one of the delegates to the national silver convention, then spoke at length upon the money volume in the United States, having first paid a tribute to the ladies. He said that the fact that within twenty days' time six banks in the city of Los Angeles had been forced to close, and within two weeks time over 200 had closed in the entire State, was a very serious thing, and that the fact that the money volume in the United States was not sufficient to meet the needs of the country, was a very serious thing.

The speaker then endeavored to show that the money volume in the United States was not sufficient to meet the needs of the country, and that the fact that the money volume in the United States was not sufficient to meet the needs of the country, was a very serious thing.

The swimming match at Santa Monica-Athletics at Redondo.

SANTA MONICA.

The immense crowds that have been seen here on Sunday for several months past, were not noticed yesterday. There were several reasons for this, the most potent of which, perhaps, is the fact that the weather is not now unbearably warm inland; and then the season usually given over to beach excursions, is now being given to an end. Before another week passes, the first of September will have come, and this date usually marks the decadence of summer life at these resorts.

A large number of people will leave for their permanent homes the coming week. Every train is taking them away now, and the close of the week will undoubtedly see a good many vacant cottages in Santa Monica. However, this season has been delightful in many respects, and no one knows just how much pleasure can be obtained at a resort like Santa Monica until they spend a few weeks here themselves.

SWIMMING CONTEST.

Outside of the usual Sunday diversions that one always encounters at the beach, yesterday those who came down were treated to a sight of the first heat in the swimming contest, which was inaugurated three weeks ago. By the conditions of the contest, no one was to be considered the winner of the medal until he was first in the goal on three different Sundays. The first Sunday William Spittles won the race, and on the next Sunday he was fortunate enough to be first in again. So yesterday there was more or less rivalry, and because if he won again, he would be entitled to the gold medal.

There was quite a stiff breeze blowing when the start was made at 2:30 p.m., but all the swimmers swam out boldly. It was quite a pretty race, and the men seemed to be pretty well matched. Spittles was the better man, and won the final race; time for the half mile, 16 minutes. As on last Sunday, Rapp was but a few feet behind, coming in second, time 16 1/2 minutes. The first prize won by Spittles was a beautiful gold medal; the second prize being a ticket entitling the holder to all the accommodations of the North Beach Bathhouse for the remainder of the season.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Countess de Henricot has been stopping very quietly here for several days at a fashionable boarding-house on Ocean avenue. But she has departed now, having gone to San Diego to absorb the ozone of that city of bay-climates.

Mrs. W. W. Rose, Mrs. Aberdeen and daughter, Edna, and Mrs. C. Pitney, D. A. Givens, Dr. Alice M. Givens, W. J. Williams and Dr. Parsons, are among the more recent arrivals at the Bellevue.

A very pleasant party of Santa Monica young folks enjoyed the novelties of a hay ride Saturday evening. The trip was up toward the hills, and refreshments were taken along, which were hugely enjoyed before their return. The evening was beautiful, and everyone had lots of fun. Those who composed the party were Ethel King, Madge McCallister, Coe Deming, Bertha Jackson, Helen Niles, and Feigh, May Johnson, Mrs. Rank, Messrs. E. J. Vawter, Harry Upton, Arthur McCandless, J. K. Smith, Ed Freeman, D. K. Camp and A. E. Jackson.

Mrs. Dr. de Selgithy, Mrs. John E. Piller, Mrs. Robert J. Northam and Miss M. E. Northam, came down Saturday evening and were guests at the Arcadia on Sunday.

Miss Grace L. Anderson of University was at the Arcadia Saturday. O. F. Stephens and G. E. Swartwood, of San Bernardino, are at Santa Monica, guests of the University. W. B. Taylor of St. Paul is in town. Dr. Robert M. Haynes of Los Angeles was down yesterday.

The Santa Rosa went north yesterday afternoon, taking a number of passengers to San Francisco. Miss Alice Selgithy, daughter of San Bernardino is spending a few weeks at Santa Monica.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron are now occupying their cottage on Nevada avenue. Joseph L. Dally, the tennis player, is still in town. The cup which he won Saturday in the contest with P. Carter is a beautiful silver affair, and is on exhibition at the Hotel Jackson.

guests had to turn them away. All the hotels are crowded, and there seems to be every indication that the season is far from over.

The German at the pavilion, which was arranged by the young ladies in the Metropole, was an unqualified success. It was led by Hugh Vail, and some of the figures were strikingly effective. In the evening there was a dance in the hotel from 8 to 10 o'clock, when the majority of the dancers went down to the pavilion.

The Panama steamer Newbern passed down the channel about midnight. Her cabin lights were easily distinguishable from the porches of the hotels.

The Aggie, with Mr. Mangell and Mr. Glanville, left Sunday for San North. She was towed out to the open ocean by the San Diego. Mr. Welland left on the Hermosa Saturday morning for Los Angeles. He said he intended to take the Los Angeles express for San Francisco, in order to make preparation for the Aggie's coming race.

L. J. Rose, Jr., who has been here for the past week, left on Sunday for Los Angeles.

It was fine sailing day on Sunday, and many took advantage of the fine breeze to go out.

The illuminations along the water front were exceedingly beautiful on Saturday night.

Among the Metropole's guests is Judge J. E. Penner, who is enchanted with Avalon beach.

Tucson is well represented among the late arrivals.

English Barley.
(Exchange) The Farmers' Gazette, England, calls for a duty on imported barley. It says that the United Kingdom produces 80,000,000 bushels of barley per year, while 28,000,000 bushels are yearly imported. About one-half of the home product is used for feeding, not being heavy enough for malting or distilling. The paper finds that the malter and brewer pay to the government twice as much in excess tax as the farmer gets. The barley used for distilling pays more than this. If a duty were laid on barley the price to English malters would be increased, while it will make little difference to those engaged in brewing and distilling, whose large profits will always bear diminution without restricting their business or affecting the cost of beer and whisky to consumers.

Quiet During Milking.
(American Cultivator.) Distracting noises and strange movements of strangers or others should not be allowed at milking time. The function of milking; it has been pretty well agreed, is controlled by the mental and nerve power of the animal, so that anything that attracts unusual attention or occasions fright lessens, or even suspends, the milk formation for it seems to be true that milk is elaborated—completed—in the operation of milking; so the cow is best milked in quiet and her thoughts directed that way. The cow that stops chewing the cud and pricks up her ears when being milked cannot be depended upon to give all of her milk. An excited cow can often be quieted down with a little palatable food.

DEATH RECORD.
ROSSHARD—Died in this city, Sunday, August 27, John Arthur, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross, aged 2 months and 10 days. Funeral today (Monday) from the family residence, No. 729 West 10th street, 2 p.m. Friends are invited to attend without further notice.

ARSENIC and quinine are dangerous drugs to accumulate in one's system, and it is to be hoped that these poisons, as a remedy for ague, have had their day. Quinine is a sure and safe antidote for the ague, is perfectly safe to take, and is warranted to cure.

The Santa Rosa went north yesterday afternoon, taking a number of passengers to San Francisco.

Miss Alice Selgithy, daughter of San Bernardino is spending a few weeks at Santa Monica.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron are now occupying their cottage on Nevada avenue.

Joseph L. Dally, the tennis player, is still in town. The cup which he won Saturday in the contest with P. Carter is a beautiful silver affair, and is on exhibition at the Hotel Jackson.

The Santa Rosa touched on its up trip Sunday, having 40 passengers, and carrying away forty-five, in addition to 110 tons of grain.

The general committee in charge of the Foresters' gathering to be held in September have heard the reports of the sub-committees, and find everything in excellent condition for a successful time. Not less than two thousand people are expected to attend. A full program will be ready for publication this week.

The guests for Wednesday evening's banquet at Hotel Redondo will be carried from the city by the Santa Rosa train over the Redondo road, which will leave the city at 6:30 p.m., returning after the banquet is over.

Platt and Allen, the acrobats, performed on the beach to a large crowd of onlookers Sunday afternoon. Their work was very clever.

The Free Reading-room Association of Redondo has been organized by the election of the following officers: Mrs. H. Thompson, president; Mrs. Rosewell, first, second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth, nineteenth, twentieth, twenty-first, twenty-second, twenty-third, twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth, twenty-seventh, twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, thirtieth, thirty-first, thirty-second, thirty-third, thirty-fourth, thirty-fifth, thirty-sixth, thirty-seventh, thirty-eighth, thirty-ninth, fortieth, forty-first, forty-second, forty-third, forty-fourth, forty-fifth, forty-sixth, forty-seventh, forty-eighth, forty-ninth, fiftieth, fifty-first, fifty-second, fifty-third, fifty-fourth, fifty-fifth, fifty-sixth, fifty-seventh, fifty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixtieth, sixty-first, sixty-second, sixty-third, sixty-fourth, sixty-fifth, sixty-sixth, sixty-seventh, sixty-eighth, sixty-ninth, seventieth, seventy-first, seventy-second, seventy-third, seventy-fourth, seventy-fifth, seventy-sixth, seventy-seventh, seventy-eighth, seventy-ninth, eightieth, eighty-first, eighty-second, eighty-third, eighty-fourth, eighty-fifth, eighty-sixth, eighty-seventh, eighty-eighth, eighty-ninth, ninetieth, ninety-first, ninety-second, ninety-third, ninety-fourth, ninety-fifth, ninety-sixth, ninety-seventh, ninety-eighth, ninety-ninth, one hundredth.

In the "scrap" after the dance at the Casino Saturday night the barber, Salter, was the aggressor, striking Platt, the acrobat, and was supported by Wallace Maxey. No knives were drawn, and the chief excitement centered in the hysteric fit of the woman, Lou Miller. Salter and Maxey were arrested by Marshal Fryer, but were not locked up.

T. P. Lyons and wife of East Los Angeles were Sunday guests at the home of L. N. Hall.

Owing to the inability of Bishop Nichols to be present on Sunday, confirmation of several candidates in Christ Church was postponed until early autumn.

W. H. Keating, El Toro, and Rev. Lloyd Keating, Santa Monica, registered at the Redondo Sunday.

EDUCATION OF THE NOSE.

The Neglected Sense of Smell May Have Great Possibilities.

(Boston Courier.) With all the developments of human knowledge and the improvements in the methods of education, there has been a strange lack of appreciation of the improvement of the sense of smell. The modern systems of education are supposed to be aimed at the bringing to perfection of all the powers of body and mind, and yet one has only to consider a little how realized how limited their recognition of the nose and possibilities of the sense really is. The faculties both of taste and smell are practically ignored by modern educators. The art of gastronomy does something for the sense of taste, but the sense of smell has not even the benefit of indirect education. It is ignored and neglected, and completely as if there was no knowledge of its existence.

Yet the capabilities of this sense are by no means small. On the utilitarian side it is easy to see that if the nose were trained to be sufficiently sensitive it would be able to be of infinite service. The good old-fashioned housewife trained her nose to warn her of fire; to tell her when an accident happened to the dishes cooking on or in the stove, which she could not stop to watch with her eyes. In rare instances men in special lines have trained their sense of smell to assist them in their work. One sees the doctors of dairy products, and in some other goods, determining the quality and condition of their goods by smelling them, but this is an exceptional matter, which is far more apt to excite the amusement of others than to call attention to the possibilities which lie neglected in the nose.

The animal kingdom should long ago have given man the hint to cultivate this sense. It is true that animals are often furnished with nerves of far greater delicacy and reach than those of man, but this is, after all, only the visible sign of what is the result of continued neglect to any functions of the body. If men had given decent attention to the sense of smell, they would not now need to be told in this particular by the beasts of the wilderness.

If a proper amount of systematic training and development of the sense of smell could be generally practiced by mankind for a generation or two, it would undoubtedly be found that the wild animals were in this particular, not necessarily so far in advance of man as to make it impossible to overtake them.

The delicacy of the perceptions which ally themselves to the sense of smell has often been commented upon, and this in itself should suggest the advisability of making much of it. The mind seems especially sensitive to the suggestion of odors, and yet this fact has never been properly taken advantage of. It is time for the recognition of the advisability of developing all the possibilities of the human body. As it stands at present, sight and hearing are made to do pretty much all the work of the perceptions, and it is time that the other senses were called upon to do their share. Let the sense of smell be trained and its possibilities studied. Who can tell to what important results this might lead?

A PITIFUL TALE.

Sad Experience of Mamie Smith.

Mystery of the Missing School Girl Solved.

Thought of Suicide First and Home Afterward.

A Cousin Named Dunn Supposed to Have Effected Her Ruin—What a San Francisco Landlady Knew.

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of Mamie Smith has been cleared up. It was on the 18th of May last that the girl, who was one of the brightest pupils in a private school of this city, was suddenly missed. All efforts of the local authorities to discover her whereabouts proved unavailing at the time, and many stories were set afloat in relation to foul play, elopement and other explanations of the singular case.

The lost girl had been found in hospital at Edgemont, Dak., but a few miles from Alpena, where her parents reside. Betrayed and deserted, and not being able to bear the shame of her disgrace, she had endeavored to reach home, finally falling sick at Edgemont, where she was found by her broken-hearted father.

The San Francisco Examiner of Saturday contains the following account of the pitiful tale of the wronged girl's troubles.

When taken into the hospital at Edgemont she smiled in the face of the nurse and said:

"I can die happy now, because I'm so near home; let me turn my face this way."

"A few hours later she was in delirium, raving for the man who had ruined her young life. One of the nurses, picking up a copy of the Examiner that contained an account of the girl's disappearance and her portrait, suspected the secret that the poor child had attempted to conceal under an assumed name, and telegraphed for the patient's father. He hurried to his daughter's bedside, and at the hospital he learned all of the pitiful story.

Even at the point of death the girl will not reveal the name of her betrayer, but all the facts point toward Clarence W. Dunn, her cousin, as the guilty man. Dunn is at present in Portland, Or.

"Since Mr. Dunn last, according to the story whispered to her father, the girl has suffered intensely. Her ruin was accomplished in a hotel at Los Angeles, she said, when the doctor no longer he concealed from her schoolmates and teachers, the child fled to San Francisco to meet Dunn. She says that she confided in him, and he offered to help her. He first secured her a room on Montgomery street, but soon removed her to the lodging-house at No. 122 Powell street. The services of Mrs. F. W. Gwyer of No. 311 1/2 Hyde street were solicited by Dunn, and the girl declined to visit that woman, saying that she would die by suicide rather than submit to the next morning.

Young Dunn left her one midnight. Next morning he returned to find that she was gone. The wretched girl had started out to find death, and he left a letter bidding her lover farewell.

"I went to the wharf," she said to her father, "but I didn't have the courage to jump into the bay. So I walked about the streets all day and night, and when morning came I had learned that I was not brave enough to die."

Then I bought a ticket to Sacramento. "In the capital city the tender, well-bred girl, gifted with many accomplishments, stood out as a nurse girl with a family on I street."

"I didn't write to my lover because I wanted him to think that I was dead," she said. "I stayed in Sacramento until July 20, and then, papa, I wanted to come home. I had saved $50 with what had been given to me, and I bought a ticket for this place. I wanted to be near home and in this hospital I found shelter."

"The condition of the girl is pitiful, and the physicians predict that death will be the result. The little wanderer will have one comfort. She will die in her mother's arms."

"It will break my wife's heart," writes the father, "but I thank you for helping to find my unfortunate child again."

The story told by Mamie Smith in the hospital at Edgemont is confirmed by investigations made in this city. Mrs. Fisher, the landlady of the rooming house at the southwest corner of O'Farrell and Powell streets, distinctly recalls the visit of young Dunn and Miss Smith to her house.

"He came here," she said, "and engaged the room and then brought her around. He was with her some time that night and I could hear them talking together. She seemed to be pleading with him about something, and he replied in a quick, sharp way. He went to the room the next day and I knocked and received no reply. Then I went in and on the top of the bureau I found a number of letters. One in the girl's handwriting was addressed to him, and it was enough to bring the tears from my eyes. I've the letters yet."

Mrs. Fisher produced a Sacred letter. It was a pathetic note, in which the girl bade her sweetheart farewell, telling him that she was about to end all her troubles by going to sleep beneath the waters of the bay.

"My own dear beloved," she began, "I am about to address you for the last time. When this comes to you, my darling, I will have gone home, home to him who will forgive all that I have done. I have imposed upon you with my trouble, and you have been too kind to complain, but I have understood all along. I did not come to you, dear, to see the doctor. I came only to be near you, whom I love better than all else in the world. I would willingly die to win your love, but I know that this can never be. Why should I not die? There is nothing for me to live for without you by my side. I could bear that the finger of scorn should be pointed at me if I could have your support, but I cannot face it without. I love you so fondly, darling, that to breathe the same air with you is happiness. You did not suspect when I asked for a pencil last night that I wanted it to write my farewell to life. I am using it now. Your goodnight kiss is still warm on my lips, dear, and I can die in peace."

"The other letters I have," said Mrs. Fisher.

Fisher, are several written by Dunn to her. They are sufficient to send him to State prison. In them he confesses everything, from the time he won her young love in the school at Los Angeles. He wants to get them very much, and has threatened to send me to prison if I don't give them up."

FRESH LITERATURE.

The New England Magazine (Boston) for the current month is better than ever before, and it significantly marks its change of management with a beautiful colored frontispiece of Mr. Chocoma in midsummer. It is a picture which will interest all who have visited the wonderful White Mountains, and the print itself is well worth framing. It is not a mere lithograph of the old style, but possesses absolute photographic reproduction of detail and delicate blendings of the colors and tones of nature. The New England is the first popular magazine to make use of the wonderful recent advances in color illustration, and this particular issue is of great interest to all amateurs in photographic and art work.

Literary Notes.

Henry M. Stanley contributes to McClure's for September one of the remarkable stories he collected in Africa. In an interesting introduction Mr. Stanley tells how this and other folk tales were related by the natives about the camp fire at night during his journeys in Africa. One of these sketches was published in The Times several weeks ago.

Dr. Mrs. Annie Howell Frechette is writing a series of short stories for McClure's Magazine, which are characterized with a delicious play of fancy and humor, reminding one strongly of the works of her brother, W. D. Howells.

The Atlantic Monthly for September contains a reply to Prof. Shailer's "Relations of Academic and Technical Instruction," which appeared in the August number. It is by Gen. Francis A. Walker, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and is a most able defense of the system of the independent technical school.

The September Harper's Magazine contains a brilliant account of "A General Election in England," by Richard Harding Davis, illustrated by W. Heathcote. "Texas," a narrative of stirring events in the State's history, and a description of its resources, by ex-Senator Samuel Bell Maxey. There are two short stories: "Gabriel," by Maurice Kingsley, and "The General's Sword," by Robert C. V. Meyers, while "A Gentleman of the Royal Guard," by William McLennan, tells a tale as romantic as any in fiction—that of the life of Daniel de Gressillon, Sieur du Lhut, the hero of Dr. A. Conan Doyle's novel, "The Refugees."

Badly Bruised. Last evening at about 6:30 o'clock a lady was knocked down and badly bruised up by the dummy of a cable train in East Los Angeles. She was standing in front of the dummy, which was then at a standstill, looking at a car coming from the opposite direction. All at once the dummy started forward with a jerk, and before the frightened woman could get out of the way, she was struck by the guard iron and thrown down. Beyond being badly scratched and bruised, she escaped, however, without serious injury.

MOTHERS, be sure and always use Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for your infants while teething. It is the best of all.

What is the condition of your hair? Is it thinning? Is it falling out? Is it becoming bald? Is it becoming gray? Is it becoming dry? Is it becoming itchy? Is it becoming sore? Is it becoming inflamed? Is it becoming diseased? Is it becoming dangerous? Is it becoming fatal? Is it becoming a curse? Is it becoming a shame? Is it becoming a disgrace? Is it becoming a blot? Is it becoming a stain? Is it becoming a mark? Is it becoming a brand?
